Who are we?

Our role as a Macmillan Navigator is a single point of contact via telephone or email for cancer patients and their carers.

We will help guide each person through their 'pathway' from detection, to diagnosis, through treatment and beyond.

Our aim is to provide a more streamlined service and positive experience for patients and their families/carers.

We will be able to answer questions, make referrals as needed and help patients and carers find local support services.

We also work collaboratively with clinical nurse specialists and other health professionals.
